

Insiders

The course “Insiders” enhances the awareness of the threat from intentional and unintentional insiders.

The espionage threat to Denmark is serious. An organization will often detect when an outsider attempts to gain access to data, either physically or electronically. But it is more difficult to detect an insider. An insider has legitimate access and may affect the activities of the organization intentionally or unintentionally. And insiders may generally inflict most damage.

Purpose

The course enhances the awareness of threats from insiders and creates a common understanding of the problem and related countermeasures.

Outcome

The course introduces the participants to the threat from insiders. They get a better understanding of potential issues and of when and how they should react. The participants are shown different insider types, which improves their ability to prevent, detect and handle insider incidents.

Target group

The course mainly targets staff involved in activities related to the critical assets of the organization. This may include staff working with security, management, HR or IT. The course is intended for companies, public authorities and research institutions.

Content

The course introduces the participants to current threats from espionage and different insider types.

Training is based on a mix of presentations by PET, plenary discussions and a number of short films focusing on various dilemmas in relation to insider incidents. Against this backdrop, the participants are encouraged to reflect on their own and others' behaviour.

Practical information

- The duration of the course is four hours.
Please contact us if you need a shorter or digital version.
- The course is intended for groups of 20-40 participants in order that they may derive optimum benefit from the dialogue, knowledge sharing and dilemma exercises.
- The course may be held several times if required by an organization.
- There are no course requirements other than active attendance.
- A room with presentation facilities is required, allowing the instructor to connect a laptop and show films with sound.
- Ideally, it should be possible to set up tables for five groups.
- The course is free of charge.

How to book the course

You book the course "Insiders" by sending an email to:
raadgivning@pet.dk